How She Saws Wood. Did you ever see a woman undertake to saw wood? It is always a little while before dinner, when the pies won't bake and the potatoes absolutely refuse to some to the boiling point, and the only stick of wood is exactly three inches too long. After vain attempts to prove the elasticity of matter by putting a two, .... $2,00 foot three inch stick, into a two-foot Asy one sending TEN DOLLARS, for a Club of New Subscribers, will receive an EXTRA COPY for ONE YEAR, free of Rut the very way she has seen some men do. But the edges of the wood are sharp, and she takes it down again with an an EXTRA COPY for SIX MONTHS, free of ejaculation, and with a growing disregard for appearance, puts her foot on it instead. Her hair never fails to come down at this juncture, and she has to stop and twist it into a tight knot behind before beginning to saw. Here the saw commences a frantic jumping and skipping on its own account, and the feminine mind being concentrated upon keeping up the foot that is up, and down the foot that should be down until, in an unlucky moment, the center of gravity is lost, the stick flies up, and launches a blow at her nose just as some body is going by. She stops and pretends to be looking for something, while dark thoughts of divorce and separation flash through her mind, and she vows in her innocent soul that she will never attempt to saw wood again if there is never any diener. But her pride and native obstinacy comes to the surface : by a new fury, she succeeds in sawing two thirds of the way through, and ATTORNEYS AT LAW, breaking off the rest of it—it is a rotten rail—she goes into the house to find the potatoes boiled dry, and the pie in a breaking off the rest of it-it is a rotten

Shortly after he went on the bench, a most cold-blooded and oruel murder was perpetrated in his district by a very noto riously bad man. The murderer was apprehended, tried and convicted of murder in the first degree. Judge C. proceeded to poonounce the sentencethe first he had ever had to, which he had prepared with great care, and, as he had himself said, the best of which he was capable, and which he had i n similar sentences been obliged to make the baris of them all. Such was the solem nity of the occasion and the fervid elo quence of the judge, that all who listen ed to the sentence passed were moved to tenrs-all, except the prisoner at the bar who was observed to be looking at the ceiling and to pay no attention whatev er, appearing, wholly indifferent to what was going on. bureau was left lying on the floor, and

Sweetman gathered up a table and ran into the yard. He sent a small boy to sound another alarm, and ran in and began racking a bed-stend to pieces, at the same time ordering the women to throw everything out of doors. He got the bedstead down and ran out doors and rushed a third boy to a fire alarm box, then went in and carefully brought out the wood-box and a floor-mat. The women were meanwhile shoving the par-Sweetman had flung the looking glass through the back window, and torn the baby's crib to pieces, he ran in and helped them while another messenger

A Visit to Stokes.

Edward S. Stokes is still in the Sing Sing prison hospital, with asthma, and chills and fever. When he arrived at the prison he was assigned to duty as clerk in the eigar manufactory, but on the following day he was taken to the hospital upon the recommendation of Dr. James R. Wood, of this city .

Yesterday a Sun reporter ob tained permission from the prison physician to enter the hospital. There are several bad cases of typhoid fever there," said the physician, "and there have been several cases of death in that room lately. I warn you in time. Will you go?" The reporter went. Four convicts lay on cots near the door. The physician thought that the fever would soon finish them. As the reporter glanced around the room he heard the familiar voice of Stokes saying, 'Helloo, old fellow; come here."

Stokes were the regulation bed tick hirt, and was tucked under three or four army blankets. "Great God!" said he, after shaking hands with the repor ter, "isn't this an pwful place ? Think of it. Here I am kept in a room where there are typhoid fever patients. Last night two men were carried out dead. Oh, what I would give to get out of here. I hope I shall be well enough next week to go into one of the shops I had a terrible shake last night. I've had the chills and fever and asthma ever since I've been here. I haven't complained

Stokes' face seemed flushed, and he said his eyesight was failing fast. He could scarcely raise himself in his bed, and while he was bolstered up and could lock through the barred window he said, "I wish I was out there" The reporter told him that Ingersoll and Earrington
